New Testament:	Roman 14: 1-12
Gospel Reading:	Matthew 18:21-35

Reflection on the Gospel reading:

Matthew continues to remind the early church of important bits of Jesus' teaching, spoken originally to the men and women gathered around him in Galilee, now retold to a more settled church community most likely from a Jewish background.

Like any group of people they fell out with each other, and asked guidance from Jesus as to how to maintain their common life. Today's passage is about forgiving other people, as we have been ourselves forgiven.

Jesus almost certainly used standard middle eastern stories to get across his points. Here a rich regional ruler demands his chief servants their annual money raised for him. When one asks forgiveness for a vast amount he hasn't got, amazingly the ruler grants it. But when the servant acts harshly to another member of the community, the ruler's wrath descends upon him in fairy tale fashion.

The core point is one of realising that we are forgiven and welcomed by God, generously, beyond count, and should pass on the benefit by forgiving others.

Although this doesn't give people the right to take advantage of others and then demand to be forgiven and escape the consequences!
